Teachers, librarians and other education professionals will not want to miss this unique professional development opportunity. In this intensive three-day course designed just for educators, you will learn how to use animation production in the classroom to engage students in learning.

Instructor Wendy Jackson Hall, an animator who has been teaching animation to young people for 15 years, will guide you through your exploration of optical toys, stop-motion and clay animation, computer animation and digital video.

The workshop will cover technology and how to use it, and how animation production can be used to reinforce learning in other content areas, such as math, science, social studies, language arts and more. Through hands-on activities, you will learn many projects you can use and adapt for your own classroom.

At the end of the workshop you will take home our exclusive Animation for Educators packet, complete with lesson plans, worksheets, and reference material. You will also receive a DVD copy of the animation samples we create in class, which can serve as examples for your students' own animation creations.

Out-of-Town Visitor Information:

Bainbridge Island is a 35- minute ferry ride from downtown Seattle. Teachers registering for this class are encouraged to stay in one of the island's many charming Inns or Bed & Breakfasts. For a free lodgings brochure, contact the Bainbridge Island Chamber of Commerce (206) 842-3700. Their web site has lots of great visitor info: www.bainbridgechamber.com

The workshop location is about one mile from the ferry terminal. There are two hotels and many restaurants within walking distance of the workshop location. It is not necessary to have a car while you visit Bainbridge Island--a bicycle is encouraged, and rentals are available from B.I. Cycle, (206) 842-6413.
